NEUTRALS AS WELL AS PEOPLE AT HOME
ARE FOOTED.—Plane Almost Entirely Ruined Not Counted as a Loss.

With the American Army in France, May 21.—According to information obtained from a captured German officer, the published monthly figures of German aerial losses are intended merely for the people at home and for neutrals and are not accepted by German aviators. As an illustration of the German method it is learned a machine shot down within the German lines, of which only part are salvaged, is not counted as a loss.

British Attack.

London, May 21.—Of the twenty to thirty machines which took part in the raid on London Sunday evening, five of them are reported to have been brought down, but official confirmation is lacking that two others fell in the North Sea.

Northwest of Merville in the Flanders sector the British have improved their positions by strong attacks the way to the sea.

Thirty machines and six machine guns were taken in this operation. A counter attack was launched by the Germans, but was quickly smashed.

IMPROVE POSITION.—Delay in the launching of the expected German offensive apparently gives little concern to the Allies, who improve their positions and thus improve their chances of success.

Twenty machines and six machine guns were taken in this operation. A counter attack was launched by the Germans, but was quickly smashed.

TAKE PRISONERS.—On the Oise front between Mt. Kemmel and Chateaubourg the French have greatly improved their positions, and thus improved their chances of success.

Twenty machines and six machine guns were taken in this operation. A counter attack was launched by the Germans, but was quickly smashed.

ITALIAN WIN.—On the Italian and Macedonian front there has been strong local fighting with the Italians winning at all points.

In the air raid on London the Germans lost five airplanes and two others are reported to have fallen in the North Sea.

ITALIAN OUTPOSTS.—Between the Somme and Aisne the British are harassing the Germans by rushing their outposts and the French have been similarly successful. The German artillery fire is violent north of Bethune. To Bethune has come the fate of many other small villages in northern France and it is now a mass of ruins.

There is no let up in the intense aerial activities. Twenty-seven machines have been destroyed by the allies and three others driven down out of control. Bombing squadrons are also busy behind the German lines and several raids have been started.

LATES STORY OF BRIBERY IN AUSTRIA

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS
Paris, May 21.—Travelers just arriving in Switzerland from Budapest, says the Matin, relate a story which caused an enormous sensation in Austria.

A Hungarian by the name of Dobay, secretary to the famous Hungarian statesman Count Karolyi, lost a sum of money at cards. He was approached by Count Von Flotow, German military attaché at Vienna, who offered him 20,000 kronen for possession of Count Karolyi's confidential notes on France in order to compromise him. Dobay informed a friend, Paul Kery, of the offer and the friend advised him to keep it to the interests of Austria. Dobay then told Von Flotow that the price was too low, demanding more for an accomplice. The attaché then offered 50,000 kronen but still Dobay was not satisfied.

Dobay was frequently in touch with Von Flotow, by telephone, first arranging that the conversations should be overheard by a representative of the government. Dobay and Kery wrote to Count Karolyi exposing the German attaché.

At a later sitting of the chamber there were interpellations on the matter but the actions of Dr. Wekerle, the Hungarian premier caused him to become unpopular. Wekerle, the Hungarian consul and Count Von Flotow are expected to return. The consuls allowed no allusion to be made of this affair in the presence of the Central powers.

ACE OF AMERICAN
FLYING CORPS LAID TO REST IN FRANCE

With the American Army in France, May 21.—Before the body of Major Lufberry was placed in the grave in a nearby French village it lay in state in a little French house. Around it were hundreds of wreaths of flowers sent by his French, British and American comrades.

On top of all these handsome wreaths was a little bunch of wild roses and daisies, attached to which was a placard showing that it came from Major Lufberry's orderly.

The orderly with tears in his eyes came up to the casket and placed the wreath upon it.

Official confirmation is still lacking that the German triplane which was responsible for Major Lufberry's death had been brought down by French aviators.

The funeral of Major Lufberry was very impressive. Three American and three French aviators carried the casket from the little house to the motor car for the trip to the grave. The procession was led by an American band and following the American aviators were French and American infantrymen. Following the coffin also were hundreds of companions of Major Lufberry, including the American and French generals commanding the sectors over which Major Lufberry fought with his machine.

The party drew up at the grave and while the service was being read an American aviator came down from the sky and dropped a huge bunch of red roses on the casket. At the conclusion of the services the American General said: "Rest peacefully, Major Lufberry. Your great example will inspire us in the spirit of sacrifice. Good-bye."

American Fists Are More Than Match For Hun Steel

"It's hard to get some fellows to understand that this isn't a boxing match."

Washington, May 20.—(Special)—Ten lieutenants of the signal corps, among them Homer Reed, W. A. Parker and R. R. Guthrie of Kansas City, just back from France, reached Washington recently.

They went to France last October and were ordered home for instruction work. They have been all along the line and they tell many stories of the fighting abroad. All of them are full of optimism as to the outcome of the war. Not one of them expressed a doubt as to the defeat of the Germans.

"We can't understand the complaints and suspicions here about the supplies, food, and equipment of the men over there," said one of them.

He said this from us, that Americans in France are well fed, well clothed, and they have the equipment for fighting.

"We our men have the guns," broke in one, "but they won't always use them. It is hard to get some fellows to understand that this

Funeral Arrangements Not Decided Upon

Evansville, May 21.—The arrangements for the funeral of the late Col. G. W. Hall have not as yet been definitely decided upon, awaiting the arrival of his daughter, Mrs. Abby Campbell, who will arrive this evening from Sedalia, Mo. In all probability it will be Thursday afternoon and the hour will be announced later. Word has not as yet been received from his brothers located at West De Pere and Antigo, Wis.

Called for Service.

Mrs. Amanda Needles, a registered nurse, who has been residing in Evansville for the past year, and who some time ago signed up with the Unit of Base Hospital No. 50, of Seattle, Washington, as a Red Cross nurse, yesterday received her call to report for duty at the base hospital, located at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio. The government is not ordering them nurses, who have registered for duty "over there" to different cantonments for military service and experience before going abroad. Miss Needles, during her stay in our city, won many close friends, who regret her leaving, but who wish her well. The best possible wished in the new line of work. She will leave today for Camp Sherman.

For some weeks past, rumors have been circulating freely, that the Mr. Metcalf, who spoke before an Evansville audience in March on the subject "My Eighteen Years in Germany," had been taken up in New York by our government as a spy. According to these rumors received lately it is claimed that it is true. If this is the case, Mr. Metcalf would not only be a spy, but a traitor also; for he was a citizen of the United States, betraying his country into the hands of her enemy.

The Baccalaureate Sermon given by the Rev. Mr. Marsh, of Evanston, last Sunday evening, for the graduates of the Evansville Junior College, was one of the best addresses ever given in Evansville. A huge audience filled the Methodist church for the occasion. Prof. J. S. Taylor, of Janesville, rendered two solos, in which his beautiful voice was heard at all present advantage, and charmed all present.

SOUTHERN FARMERS RAISING FOOD CROPS

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS

Atlanta, Ga., May 21.—The south will raise the greatest food crop in its history this year, despite very unfavorable weather conditions interfere with the program. The spring drive in France and Flanders came just in time to rouse the planters.

Cotton is being supplanted by potatoes, rice and other food crops, in some places, but the total curriculum of cotton output probably will not be great.

Florida is producing about 50,000 carloads of foodstuffs for shipment to the north and west. W. G. McAdoo, director general of military rations, promised a supply of the 50,000 cars.

Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi are increasing food acreage from 25 to 65 per cent. Though many of the farmers' sons have gone to war, the shortage of labor has been supplied in many cases by purchase of tractors and other farm machinery.

Six million acres of corn have been planted near Memphis, Tenn. Mississippi farmers hope to raise 20,000,000 bushels of corn.

Last corn and potato were objects of a special meeting of the Georgia Farmers Union last week. Weather conditions have been bad in Alabama, but the state agriculture bureau estimates the wheat crop at 87 per cent of normal, compared with only 65 per cent last year.

Frame New Ordinance.

Ashland, N. J.—New York may be valuable and the raising of pigs is profitable, but it all depends upon the kind of a pig. City Attorney C. A. Lamereaux has been asked by the city commission to draft an ordinance regulating pigs—those of the "hogs" variety. This has recently joined the draft animals and the city commission proposes to see that no new establishments are operated even under the name of "pig."

Only About Half the Steer is Beef

Live Weight 1200 pounds

100%

Dressed Weight 672 pounds of Beef

56%

When Swift & Company buys a steer weighing 1200 pounds, only about 672 pounds goes to market as beef; the other 528 pounds consists of hide, fats, other by-products, and waste.

When the packer pays 15 cents a pound for a steer, he sells the meat to the retailer for about 22 cents. But the packer gets only about 9 cents a pound for the other 528 pounds.

This means that the packer gets about 16½ cents a pound for all the products from a steer for which he pays 15 cents.

The difference of 1½ cents per pound covers the cost of dressing, preparation of by-products, freight on beef to all parts of the United States, operation of distributing houses, and leaves a net profit of only about ¼ of a cent per pound on all dressed beef sold.

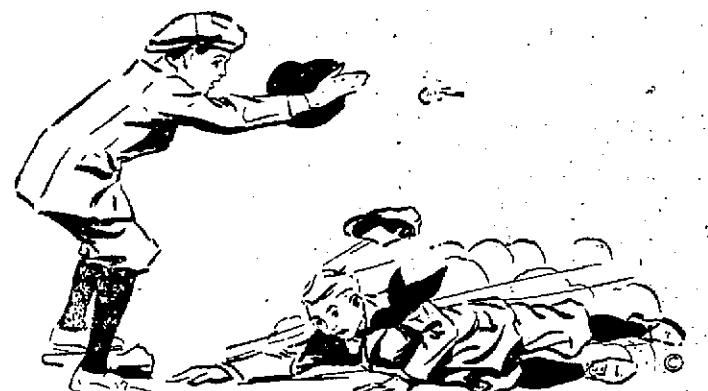

Large volume of business and utilization of parts that were formerly wasted, make this achievement possible.

GERMAN IN SCHOOLS.

Edgerton set the example for Rock county by closing their course in German in their high school. Milton Junction recently went a bit further, and all the German text books, save two, mysteriously disappeared from the school building in one night. These two had been taken home by students for study overnight. They even took a step farther and passed a recommendation at a mass meeting to the school board that they abandon the study of German, but thus far no action has been taken.

Now the question remains, why does the Janesville high school continue the teaching of German in the high school here? It is not essential to the best interests of the community and the school board should take action. In case you do not know who the members of the school board, their names appear below. And if you feel as strongly on this subject as others you might ask these men why they do not change their school course to conform to the patriotic wishes of the nation. Perhaps it has not occurred to them in this light, but the German language is the tongue of an enemy. Its use in this country, in newspapers, in churches, in conversation should be prohibited. A man who reads and talks German in public places should be held as a suspect, an alien enemy. We talk plain United States these days and the man or woman who talks an enemy's language should not object if they are regarded with suspicion. There are many places in Janesville where men from the "Motherland" gather and talk their native tongue. If the new council is wise they will look into these places and find out what is said and what is discussed, before making them future gathering spots for the "Imperialists." We are at war with a reactionary force. They speak German, the Germans means treachery and cruelty as illustrated by the disciples of the "Motherland." Belgium was but a series of paper. Serbia's roadways are lined with gibbets from which simple-minded citizens swing, while simple-minded citizens swing "A place in the Sun." "Greater than God," and human atrocities beyond belief. Talk it over with your aldermen and talk it over with your school board members and see if you want German taught in the Janesville schools next year.

The following names comprise the list of school board members, so you know who to approach: S. M. Smith, George E. J. T. Hooper, Francis G. W. J. Flemming, E. J. Haumon, Joe Smith.

TIME AND TIDE.

Time and tide waits for no man. They are part of nature's great problem of existence, that never have been solved. The man who fails to grasp the opportunity at the time it appears, loses a decided step in life. Just the same is the man who fails to grasp the personal responsibility of the great war we are waging and does not do his share. He is just as negligent to the nation's interests, as the other man is to his individual interests. No one can excuse lawlessness. No one can contemplate anarchy. No one can desire a rebellion against authorized authority, but still the man who refuses to do his share in this war of ours is a coward and a slacker. Fort Sheridan, Ill., is filled with slackers, men who failed to register or did not respond to the call of the registration boards for enlistment. This is but one internment camp and there are many others. Thus for the federal government has been lenient with individuals beyond the draft age as to their duty to the government, but the time will come when they will be made to pay their penalty. They will have to subscribe and give liberally of their cash. They can afford to. The able-bodied men of this nation are at war and fighting your fight and mine. Rock county has given the share of these men and we should not be asked to give more as individuals than men who have the resources to draw from and do not. The federal government has a tax they impose on individuals of certain classes and they must pay it. Then when it comes to the question of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and the Knights of Columbus, or any other war activity, these individuals think themselves immune. But they are not. They must pay their share and their share is fair. The quicker the individual discovers he is not as big as the community he lives in the better it is for the individual and for the community. Yellow paint may be radical, but it is a powerful argument, and it is possible the dose may be repeated if others do not see the light of day and understand that the difference between avarice and profligacy is measured not merely by conjecture, but by dollars and cents. Rock county is loyal and no streak of yellow can be found in its service flag. Your share is fair.

OVER THERE.

It would seem as though the allies are holding their own "over there." If we may judge by press dispatches. Of course we do not expect the Huns to be driven back across the Isthmus all at once, although it looks now as though they might be later on. Meanwhile we residents of Rock county have the satisfaction of knowing that in the great army of Americans that have been assembled across the water, in the marshes, on the high seas and actually in France, there are many native sons really just tugging at the leash to be given an opportunity to test their strength with the foe. Holton, Janesville and Edgerton all had separate units that went out in the national guard. Evansville contributed its share as did Orfordville, Clinton, Milton and Milton Junction, and every other community, and aside from that look at the young men who have gone into the national army and the regular service. You Rock county is paying its share, and paying it fair. Those left at home must do likewise.

WORKERS' PARADISE.

German propaganda has always dwelt upon the lovely paternal policy of the Kaiser's government and its watchful care for the happiness and welfare of its people. We have heard much about their social insurance like old age pensions.

Recent figures show that average wages in Germany before the war among the wood-workers, a typical industry, were $5.90 a week.

Their old age pensions ran from $18.58 to $48.46 per year. The federal farm loan banks were useful only to the reasonably comfortable middle class and age pensioners.

Working hours in Germany average much longer than ours. Mighty few of our working people would change conditions here for those in Kaiser-dom. Yet so skillful and far-reaching has German publicity stuff been, that most people thought the Kaiser had gone far beyond our country in his careful insurance against poverty.

It all goes to prove the value of advertising, but as in other fields of business, the advertiser has to back up his goods.

The people who rejoiced so when the German spies had to quit smashing up a few carloads of potatoes, did not foresee that they might wreck a good part of our aircraft program.

Cutting out the study of German in the lower schools is all right, but we want enough people in the country who can read it and find out what the pesky critters are up to.

It's job or jail for loafers in several states now, but our old friend Dusty Rhodes has no doubt which he will choose.

Kaiser Bill did not buy a Liberty bond, but he gave the issue good advertising by his March offensive.

Another one of those "acid tests" we read about is eating Mrs. Newlywed's rhubarb pie.

We can never believe that the kaiser is behind the plan to seat the little czarowitch on the throne of Russia. He would never let anything like that go out of his own family.

Bolshevism isn't more than skin deep, after all. One of the whiskered officials in Russia has refused to ride in silver.

All men will have to wear soft collars next year. Now if the burghers will all quit, we won't be able to tell the poets from the human beings.

THOUGHTS ON MOVING.

The children moved, the other day, an' Ma an' I at night. Walked over there to see if they were gettin' on all right. An' Jim, he met us at the door, a sorry sight to see.

"Geen, while this moving stant is fierce," he sadly said to me, "I've wasted with the chairs an' rugs until my back is sore. An' put up beds an' carted books an' polished every floor.

You bet I've had enough of this; right here we shall remain. An' cold in death my form will be before I'll move again."

I chuckled to myself because I saw that he'd forgot. The time we moved from house to house when he was just a tot, they didn't send for him around to pull him in the van. An' for the whole shebang for us—I was the extra man!

An' rolls an' rolls of carpet, then, hid every wooden space, which I must beat, then new and rip an' stretch to fit the place.

You two might well complain," said I, "about your chin."

If the skin was off your fingers an' your mouths were full of tacks."

It all came back to me right then; I saw once more the scene when Ma an' I were puttin' down that body Brussels green.

We started in the middle an' we worked.

Then crashed an' slashed an' tore an' ripped to get it round a bend.

An' on our hands an' knees we crawled an' stretched an' yanked at it.

To lay that carpet on a floor it wasn't made to fit.

Ma used our only hammer an' I pounded with an ax.

An' for a while, we rested, was to all our mouths with tacks.

There were nine rooms, then, to settle, an' a winding flight of stairs.

An' they all required carpet, so for weeks we had our cars.

There were stove pipes, too, to joggle,

an' as I recall it now,

By the time we got adjusted I was

DRIVE FOR RECRUITS WILL BE STAGED HERE

Special Navy Recruiting Party Will Come to Janesville to Seek Enlistments in United States Navy.

Young men of Janesville who have not yet answered their country's call for fighting men will have an opportunity to join the Navy on Wednesday May 23rd, when a special recruiting party from Milwaukee will visit the city. J. Miller, chief gunner's mate, and George J. Fay, seaman, first class, will be at the post office during the day to meet young men who would like to make a quiet, interesting life and training in the Navy.

Last week was the banner week in Navy recruiting, since the war began. Hundreds and hundreds of Wisconsin boys flocked to the sea-fighting forces—the first line of defense—and hundreds more are expected to join the Navy.

To put Janesville "over the top" on Navy recruiting, the special party will come from Milwaukee to make a local drive.

Right now the opportunities in the Navy are better than ever before. Hundreds of new ships are now built and the young men, young men enter the service and their chances for obtaining a responsible position in the Navy that is growing so fast.

The Navy is the highest paid organization for fighting in the world. The lowest pay is $32.00 per month, with board, which is given the men during their training period, and advances on up to as much as $45 for men who have proven their ability.

Men with trades, particularly carpenters and machinists, are wanted at once. Men without a trade may enlist and learn one at the government's expense.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Most motion picture actresses must be content with flattering comments upon their curly hair, their dazzling dimples, their diminutive size, their ability to wear clothes or their beauty, but not so Mme. Alla Nazimova. One scarcely ever reads about her black hair, her olive complexion, her lithe figure, her perfect taste and the peculiar type of beauty of this famous Russian actress.

Instead one always hears of her "characteristic and intimitable Art," with a capital "A." Mme. Nazimova is a really great actress and although she has had a long and successful career on the speaking stage she has made but one film picture. Her first was a picturization of "War Brides," which she made under the direction of Herbert Brenon for Selznick Pictures.

Mme. Nazimova was born in Russian Crimea and when a child studied the violin, but instead of continuing along this line she took a dramatic alibi and became an actress at Odessa. Her first stage experience was under the direction of the great Stanislavsky, at the Artistic Theater, Moscow. As a leading woman of a Russian stock company, she played nearly two hundred parts, a wide variety of production. She then came to America and played in both American and English dramas, having an unbroken record of successes. Her interpretation of Ibsen was probably her most notable work. She attained great popularity in vaudeville, however, in "War Brides."

She is now signed up with Metro and has made two pictures, "Revolution," which has already been released, and which was a sensational success, and "Toys of Fate," which is to be her next release. Both of these vehicles are particularly suited to the star and both call for keen interpretation and fine delineation of character. In the former she is a cabaret dancer who reforms and in the latter she plays the part of a gypsy mother, and it is hoped that more of her type will soon join the cinema players.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a middle-aged man and my wife is three years younger than I am. We have been married ten years and have no children. I am very fond of children and so was my wife until about one year ago. We had talked about adopting one, but she refused to do so now. What would be the best to do in this case? It would be fine to have a child to care for and would be lots of pleasure for us both. She would mind if she became attached to a child and realized that it was hers to care for. We are very well situated and have nice income and would do all I could for one if I had a chance to do so.

If we were to have one adopted how is the best way to go about it? What would your suggestion be? HUSBAND.

Since it is your wife who would have the care of the child you cannot adopt one very well unless she is willing to do so. Let her know that you want her to be happy and make no difference in your mind. It happened so long ago that it does not require any explanation, because the young man whom the man loves the young woman whom the man loves she will see how disappointed you are and then consent to take a child.

You could get baby from the state orphans, but this might not be as satisfactory as it would be to get one through a maternity hospital. Women often hospitals are anxious to give babies.

Your wife should decide what age she prefers to have. If she took a new baby she could train it in her six weeks.

REV. EWING GIVES INTERESTING TALK

Rev. Charles Ewing of the Congregational church gave a very interesting talk on Sunday on the topic of the new Chamber of Commerce that is being organized in this city. He used as his text, Text 11 Timothy, Chapter 1. He said in part as follows:

"For God gave us not the spirit of fearfulness, but of power and love and discipline."

"On the day of Pentecost, the Holy Spirit came to make the first disciples ready and fit for whatever duty faced them as their immediate task. It is still true that the Spirit of God will give the impulse for new possibilities.

"One of the immediate tasks that faces the people of Janesville is such a civic reorganization as can be produced only by a new spirit and which is best produced only by the Spirit of God. For God's Spirit gives the courage, the fearlessness, that we need for a new plan of action. Just as we now require as much vigor and strength as we did not possess two years ago, so in our own city we need power sufficient to overcome the lethargy that has often been in the ascendant; and we need this in church affairs, in our individual lives, and in community affairs.

"The city has decided to revert to the former political form of city management, and this is no reason why this would not be a great success, if only with the change of form there be also a new spirit. The Commercial club has become a thing of the past, why? Simply in order that a new organization may take its place.

"The new C. of C. is not yet successful, but it can meet with success only if it has the hearty co-operation of all who desire better conditions for our city. In order to assure success, nothing is more necessary than the infusion of a new spirit in Janesville. We need courage; we need power; we need muscle; for "bravery, kindness, the spirit of working together, we need self-control and discipline. These are the result of a spirit that is more than self-humility.

"Humanity can bring about Janesville needs the Spirit of God. Get the new spirit, and expect a new order of affairs, for city, state, nation and the whole world."

THE TABLE.

Cottage Cheese Salad—Take fresh cottage cheese and add a few broken parsnips chopped finely. Make the mixture into balls after adding salt to taste. Roll the balls in some finely chopped parsley until well covered.

They may then be used as a garnish for some salad or placed on lettuce leaves covered with salad dressing and served with waters.

Enclosed Salmon—Rub to a paste two tablespoons barley flour and one of butter. Add one cup sweet milk and boil until thick, stirring constantly. Beat two eggs and add to dressing.

Caramel Icing—One cup brown sugar, enough milk to dissolve sugar, one tablespoon water. Boil until ball forms. Cool.

Cooked Dressing—Mix one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon cayenne, one tablespoon sugar, one-half tablespoon bacon fat, one-half teaspoon flour.

Bone salmon, salt and pepper to taste, add rolled cracker crumbs and dressing. Turn into greased mold or casserole and cover with butter and bread or cracker crumbs. Brown in hot oven.

Now he has this girl in tow, and I'll bet that he has promised her a position as leading lady in a first-class moving picture company."

"Shall we seek you out and warn her about the man?"

"She may, it would do no good. That little girl knows a lot more about this than you or I, or even the directors and producers. It's a pitiful case of misdirected ambition. Just the same if you will excuse me I shall report the circumstances to the police. A good citizen ought to be privy to detectives, especially when the safety of girls is concerned."

Then he excused himself and phoned to one of the police officers. Very likely we shall have developments.

Oh, my dear, measure honestly what people tell you about yourself. It is over easy to attribute a kindly warning to jealousy.

Lovingly, your auntie.

THE WAR-HORSE.

Observations of a War Horse by ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

My Dear Niece:

Having written you something about the little girl who came here with her mother to seek an engagement with some moving picture company I am certain you will be interested in her further efforts to please herself.

In spite of all that has been said to her about her unfitness for moving picture work she has not gone. I am told that she refuses to credit the shrewdness of what has been told her, setting it down to prejudice or jealousy.

She came into my mind again because I saw an account on the occasion of a recent dinner given by some of Alberta's friends to announce her engagement. She is to marry an excellent young man; but he has not yet made his fortune. They have but the best hopes. Alberta is an amiable girl, but she had not the necessary social training to teach the musical so I am just a bit in doubt about this marriage. If she is deeply in love, she may stick to matrimony; but if she is not I am wondering what she will do when she finds it takes as much perseverance and tact and patience to do up a moving picture as it does to develop latent musical talents with. We shall see.

The dinner was served in a private dining room, but the door was opened occasionally so that we could see through into the main dining hall. Directly before me sat a girl in a huge poke bonnet and a floppy skirt of gown. She created a general impression of being overdecorated and the arrangement of her hair, masses and masses of dull-looking curls, clearly false, surrounded her face and completely filled the space between her cheeks and the poke bonnet and was a pitiful, painted little figure, and my mind was trying vainly to place her when suddenly saw her and spoke her when I saw her escort, whom I had failed to notice.

"Look at the couple directly across the room," he said. "What's the matter with the world when a guy like that can take young girls about unchaperoned? Poor child, she must have been hard up for a feed. I feel that ought to call one of the police-women."

I looked up puzzled, and he explained.

"I am referring to the gink directly across the room from us, the one with the sacks under his eyes. He's been out of jail an ungodly long time. He's been overripe for San Confusion. Did you ever have so much to do so many things that demanded your attention all at once, that when you contemplated them you felt absolutely paralyzed?

In the middle of the housecleaning season this spring, I was attacked with that species of paralysis. The house was in utterable confusion. A paper hanger had promised to come, permitted me to make all preparations, and then telephoned me the night before that he would not be able to come to town, so the rug cleaner had not kept his promise to send back the dining room rug in time, so the dining room was in that half-baked condition attendant on an absent rug; we had started to clean the pantry, the day before, and really ought to finish it now.

How I Cut the Knot. I simply solved the problem of which of the seven things to do first, by doing none of them.

I had it in mind to make a visit to a friend who always rests and refreshes me. But I hadn't felt I had the time. Today, I made up my mind to make the time.

Yes, the confusion was still there when I came home. I had to face the same problems the next day. But it was a different person who faced them. The paralysis had gone. Instead of sitting down in a chair and gathering at the tangled knot of it, I took hold of it and began to untangle it.

I think there are a great many women who can never bring themselves to try to cure this sort of paralysis that way.

They Sniff to No Purpose. They simply draw themselves about all day and get a few things done, and then for the next day in the same futile state of mind. They think it's cowardly to run away, and with everything to do they think they can't possibly spare the time. And in the end they don't get any running, as far as if they had run away. Besides they undergo all the misery of mind inevitably involved.

But this is my friend, that is my own tendency, and this was the first time I ever tried the other way.

But not the last.

A Shampoo Worthy Trying

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleaned each time, by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair, and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of Camphor, which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply to all the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright lustre and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

PETEY DINK—STILL, IT MUST HAVE BEEN QUIET IN THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES, COMPARATIVELY SPEAKING.

Darwin went with his mamma to visit his aunt, who had three little girls. After a short time he came in and sat down by his mamma, who at one asked why he wasn't playing with his cousins, and he replied: "O, mamma, it is too much girl for me."

Then Ruby Lee, not to be outdone by anybody, produced, from no one ever discovered where, a mother-of-pearl manicure set for the delight and mystification of the hero; and even Lazy Daisy went so far as to cut some red and yellow tissue paper into squares under the delusion that sometime, somehow, she would find the energy to roll these into spools, for the lighting of Abe's pipes. And each and every sister from time to time contributed some gift or suggestion to her "brother's" comfort.

It "plagued" the others, however, to see that none of them could get ahead of Glossy in their noble endeavors to make Abraham feel himself a light and welcome burden. She it was who discovered that Abe's contentment could not be absolute, without griddlecakes for breakfast three hundred and sixty-five times a year; she it was who first baked him little saucer cakes and pies because he was partial to edges; and Glossy it was who made out a list of "Dont's" for the sisters to follow in their treatment of this grown-up young-old boy.

"Don't scold him when he leaves the doors open. Don't tell him to wipe his feet. Don't ever mention gold mines or shiftless husbands," etc., etc.

All these triumphs of Glossy's intuition served naturally to spur the others on to do even more for Brother Abe than they had already done, until the old man began to worry for fear that he should "git spilt." When he lay down for his afternoon nap and the house was dull and quiet without his waking presence, the ladies would gather in groups outside his door as if in a king's antechamber, waiting for him to awaken, saying to one another ever and again, "St, shh!" He professed to scoff at the attentions he received, would grunt and growl "Humbug!" yet nevertheless he thrived in this latter-day sunlight. His old bones took on flesh; his aged kindly face, all seamed with care as it had been, filled out, the wrinkles turning into twinkle. Abraham had grown young again. With the return of his youth came the spirit of youth to the Old Ladies' home. Verily, verily, as Glossy had avowed from the first, they had been in sore need of the masculine presence. The ancient coat and hat, which had hung in the hall so long, had perhaps served its purpose in keeping the burglars away, but this lifeless substitute had not prevented the crabbed gnomes of loneliness and discontent from stealing in. Spinster, wife and widow, they had every one been warped by the testy festiveness of the old maid.

Now, instead of fretful discussions of health and food, recriminations and wrangling, there came to be laughter and good-humored chatter all the day long, each sister striving with all her strength to preserve the new-found harmony of the home. There were musical evenings, when Miss Abigail opened the melodeon and played "Old Hundred," and Abraham was encouraged to pick out with one stiff forefinger "My Grandfather's Clock." "Hymn tunes" were sung in chorale, and then, in answer to Abe's appeal for something livelier, there came time-tried ditties and old, old love songs. And at last, one night, after leaving the instrument silent, mute in the corner of the parlor for many years, Aunt Nancy Smith dragged out her harp, and, seating herself, reached out her knotted, trembling hands and brought forth what seemed the very echo, so faint and faltering it was, of "Douglas, Douglas, Tender and True."

There was a long silence after she had finished, her head bowed on her chest, her hands dropped to her sides. Abraham spoke first, clearing his throat before he could make the words come.

"I wish I could git a husband for every one of you," said he.

And no one was angry, and no one laughed; for they all knew that he was only seeking to express the message conveyed by Nancy's playing, the message of love, love triumphant, which cannot age, which over the years and over death itself always hath the victory.

CHAPTER VII.

Old Letters and New.

Glossy left the room without a word, and went stealing up the stairs to the little cupboard where she now slept, and where was hung on the wall, in a frame of yellow hollyhocks, painted by her own hand, a photograph of Capt. Samuel Darby, the man who had remained obstinately devoted to her since her days of pinnafores.

The picture betrayed that Captain Darby wore a wig designed for a larger man, and that the visage beneath was gaunt and weather-beaten, marked with the signs of a stubborn and unreasonable will.

Even now the aged belle could hear him saying: "Here I be, come around ter pop ag'in. Ready ter hitch?"

Samuel's inelegant English had always been a source of distress to Glossy; yet still she stared long at the picture.

Six months had passed since his last visit; tomorrow would be the date of his winter advent.

Should she give the old unvarying answer to his tireless formula?

She glanced around the tiny room. Ashamed though she was to admit it even to herself, she missed that ample and cozy chamber which she had so freely surrendered to Abraham and his wife. She missed it, as, she felt they must crave their very own fire-side; and the thought that they missed the old homestead made her yearn for the home that she might have had—the home that she still might have.

Again she brought her eyes back to the portrait; and now she saw, not the characteristics which had always made it seem impossible for her and Samuel to get together down life's road, but the great truth that the face was honest and wholesome while the eyes looked back into hers with the promise of an unwavering care and affection.

"Don't scold him when he leaves the doors open. Don't tell him to wipe his feet. Don't ever mention gold mines or shiftless husbands," etc., etc.

All these triumphs of Glossy's intuition served naturally to spur the others on to do even more for Brother Abe than they had already done, until the old man began to worry for fear that he should "git spilt." When he lay down for his afternoon nap and the house was dull and quiet without his waking presence, the ladies would gather in groups outside his door as if in a king's antechamber, waiting for him to awaken, saying to one another ever and again, "St, shh!" The late Major Augustus P. Gardner, whose death at Camp Wheeler shocked his fellow congressmen and the nation, used to go in for yachting.

A rich and snobbish Bostonian once came to pass the week-end on Mr. Gardner's yacht. The yacht was modest, and the rich man, looking at it, sniffed.

"Hump," he said, "I thought it was bigger than it is."

Rev. Ira Van Allen, forty-two-year-old messenger boy, who was prompted through patriotism to leave the pulpit for the Western Union Telegraph company, answered a call to a Syracuse hotel.

"Are you the boy I sent for?" asked the clerk.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "but would you mind coming out of your trance for a little while. I find it impossible to shave you while you are asleep."

"Impossible to shave me while I am asleep," responded the customer, wondering.

"Because," explained the barber as softly as possible, "when you fall into slumber your mouth opens so wide that I cannot find your face."

MAGNATES OF MINOR LEAGUES FAILED TO SEE EFFECTS OF WAR

(By INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

New York, May 21.—The minor league baseball magnates who last week refused to sanction a reorganization of minor leagues due to the meeting at Louisville are beginning to see the light now—when it is too late.

Several leagues which are steering nearer and nearer the edges of extinction, and those which went over the brink, might have been saved if the magnates had done differently.

The day has come now when a concerted effort can be made to save the minors. They must live or die together, and the territory they leave open if they do succumb may be picked up when better days come again.

The International league, one of those to vote in favor of redistricting, offers an object lesson to other leagues. When this league skidded around the corners of mid-winter and voted to disband, the territory was left wide open, and players were declared free agents. A Toronto club, for instance, lost heavily when National League signed to manage the Indianapolis club, and several other players were snapped up by the American Association. If the best efforts of this league had been combined with the best of the American Association these minor would have been any better. The teams dropped from the circuit could have been enhanced in strength and more compact organizations.

Now Lincoln and Denver have faded from the memory of the Western league. Providence has gone from the Eastern league in the east. Richmond has been left with a club. Montreal has no backhalf of the professional kind. These cities could have been taken care of in the redistributing plan figured out by E. Barron. The men who fought the reorganization knew they were ready for the skids, but they grimly held on, hoping against hope that something would happen.

YANKS NEED ADDITION TO PITCHING STAFF

New York, May 20.—Unless Miller Huggins is able to find up a pitcher or two, the Yanks, with all their power, hitting and brilliant fielding, are likely to ride a second division bath under the wire.

Dugout Caldwell, George Mogridge and Alton Russell have been extremely disappointing to the midget leaders with special emphasis on Caldwell. The slim telegraph operator has been practically useless so far. Warm weather may bring the kinks out of him, but he's growing old in the new, and he has not yet led what might be called the best of a life for an athlete.

Russell has been an in and out player this year. He has performed in championship style, but, certain clubs, but his style makes him an uncertain entry, and he has the misfortune of developing streaks of wildness that are disastrous to his club.

Mogridge hasn't been able to maintain form at all times. He also is nervous and likely to ascend when the wrong time comes. It is the he had been the best bet of the Yankee stars, so Tom and Herbert Minneapolis appear to be the nucleus of a new staff for the Yankee. Each has done well. Thorman appeared to advantage in a game against the Red Sox early in the season, when he lost his game in the ninth inning by a 1 to 0 score, due to an error by Ping Bodie.

Huggins has been trying to land

appeared a sure

for the New York team until he attempted to buy his release from the Braves. The Braves are just as hard up as the Yankees and the Yankees are hard-headed. The owners of the former world champions refuse to pay him to sell him for the $10,000 price he placed on his own services. The Yanks will pay him the salary. The Braves can use him with much gusto, however, so there is little likelihood that Dick will make the change unless he can work out a deal that will involve the transfer of Uncle Sam choose Alex for one of his ball clubs.

Can Fred Mitchell, with the loss of

Grover Alexander, so keep the Cub in the fight?

That's the question

asked by a correspondent would say after full consideration of it. Mitchell's pitchers have shown to date that he has given the answer and that it is favorable. The Cubs were not expected to land better than second even with Alex. On the showing they have made against western teams second should be theirs in no canter. What might have happened if Alex had not come to war will remain to be seen positively, but we'll warrant the John McGraw of the Giants feels mighty relieved that Uncle Sam choose Alex for one of his ball clubs.

Royer Hornsby, who just about represents the cream of the minor stands in the National League, has announced he will quit baseball at the end of the current campaign with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hornsby says he is going to retire so he can spend all his time with his mother at Fort Worth, Tex.

The shortstop's mother is feeble and unable to travel. The youngster recently collected $1000 from the fans on his account. He practically gives her his season's salary.

Hornsby is one of the most sensational youngsters that ever broke into the majors. In his first season as a regular he became one of the stars of the game on account of his ability to hit the ball. There isn't a more consistent slugger in the National League than the Texan.

The trouble with most iron men in baseball is that the iron is in their heads instead of their arms.

Rabbit Maranville, the former

Bravo shortstop, who is enlisted at the Boston navy yard, has no great desire to remain a member.

Jackie's navy career Maranville is about to get over in European waters on active service. The Rabbit says that he has been to sea a number of times. Each time he hoped he was headed across the pond, but inevitably returned to Beantown.

Already this season he has made a number of sweet hits off first balls pitched. Which shows what a little thought will accomplish in the dear
